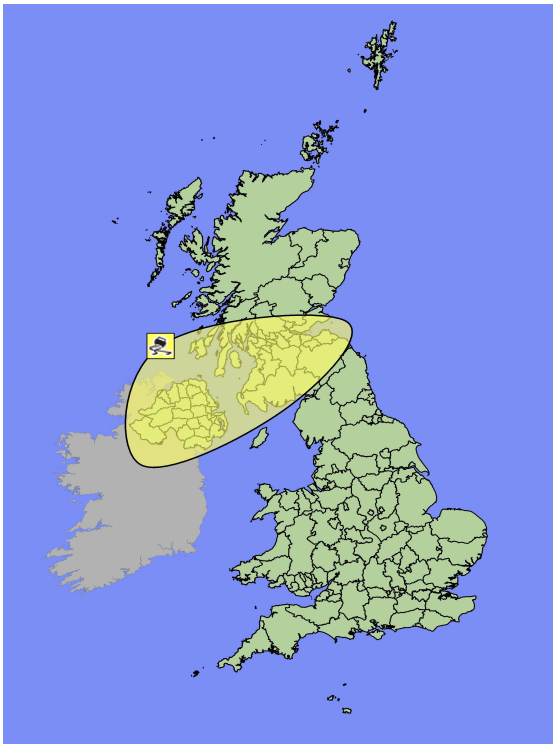
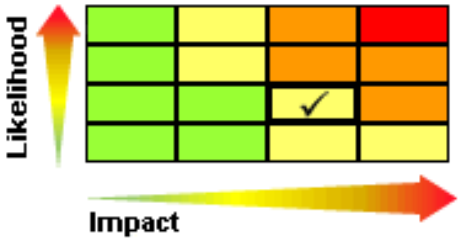
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
There is a risk of showers continuing across this area during Thursday night, falling as snow at times and giving some moderate accumulations, mainly above 200 metres. However, ice will be the main hazard, before, during and after showers.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 15:00 on Thu, 15th Dec 2011 until 12:00 on Fri, 16th Dec 2011

Clear spells on Thursday evening and overnight will lead to a frost and a risk of widespread ice on untreated surfaces. Some showers will continue, becoming more frequent for a time overnight and turning increasingly to sleet and snow, especially over northern parts of Northern Ireland and parts of Strathclyde and Galloway. Accumulations of 5 cm of snow are likely over higher ground with some slush to lower levels. Showers die away from most places during Friday morning.

The public should be aware that this could lead to travel disruption.
